Gifts of Life Insurance

Many Canadians own some type of life insurance as it allows for the accumulation of tax-sheltered funds and provides heirs with quick access to financial resources. A Gift of Life Insurance may be appealing if you: are under 50 and in good health, would like to make a large gift for a relatively small financial outlay, and your family no longer requires the life insurance proceeds.

Why is a gift of Life Insurance beneficial?

Simple & Convenient – The transaction is simple. Your life insurance agent can advise you on the type of policy that would best fit your needs. In addition to custom design your program and carry out the necessary paperwork.

Cost Effective – A low-cost way to make a larger gift than you might otherwise be able to, without depleting your current assets now, or your estate later. The value of your policy will be far more than the premiums you pay.

Tax Advantages – A gift of life insurance can produce tax relief annually for the premiums paid or a tax credit for your estate in the year of your death. You and your financial advisor can determine how to structure your gift to save tax for you during your lifetime or for your estate. During your lifetime, the donation limit is 75% of net income, and increases to 100% of your income in the year of death. Any excess tax credits generated in the year of your death can be carried back one year, and applied to recover a portion of that year's tax to a maximum of 100% of income for the previous year.

Eliminates Probate, Legal & Executor Fees – Life insurance is not subject to probate costs or delays in settlement.

Privacy – Life insurance is not a matter of public record and allows you to remain anonymous. Unlike a Will, the gift cannot be contested.

Peace of Mind – You can arrange the gift and be assured that it will occur just as you planned. After a quick claim process, the proceeds are paid directly to Canadian Feed The Children

Estate Preservation – The proceeds of your estate left to your family is not diminished because life insurance, by its very nature, creates an additional, separate estate.

Recognition – Your gift can be honoured during your lifetime.

Opportunity – An opportunity to make a significant gift to reduce the impact of poverty on children.

How does a gift of Life Insurance work?

There are a number of easy ways to make a gift of Life Insurance to Canadian Feed The Children.

- You can take an existing permanent policy that has finished serving its original purpose and simply have the ownership and beneficiary designation transferred to Canadian Feed The Children. This designation is irrevocable and cannot be changed.

A charitable tax receipt will be issued for the worth of the policy at the time of transfer. Any continued premium payments also qualify for a charitable tax receipt. Please note that there are tax advantages to retaining existing policies. Canadian Feed The Children strongly recommends that you discuss this matter with your insurance agent before any transfer takes place.

- You can purchase a new life insurance policy. After your first premium payment, Canadian Feed The Children is named as the owner and beneficiary. You continue to pay the premiums and receive a charitable tax receipt for those payments. This designation is also irrevocable and cannot be changed.
- You can name Canadian Feed The Children as the beneficiary on your individual or group life insurance. You retain ownership of the policy and can change the beneficiary designation at any time. However you will not receive a charitable tax receipt for any premiums paid during your lifetime. Your estate will receive a charitable tax receipt for the value of the policy proceeds paid to Canadian Feed The Children. If you are a salaried employee and have a benefit plan that has a death benefit component, consider naming Canadian Feed The Children as the beneficiary; it is an easy way to make a planned gift.

Please Seek Expert Advice:

Canadian Feed The Children strongly recommends that you seek professional advice to ensure your financial goals are considered, your tax situation reviewed, and your planned gift is tailored to your circumstances.
